

I feel that privacy is far more important than keeping track or profiling the people who fly for "security". Once the database of information is accumulated, there are too many potentials for abuse. I think it is sick and disgusting that anyone would propose such a thing, and I would consider anyone who worked on such a project slightly below the level of pond scum.

Jeff